

SPORTS LAW PRACTICE

PHILOSOPHY

PROBLEM

In-house lawyers for professional sports teams and university athletics departments often have too much on their plate yet do not have the budget to consistently get help from outside counsel. At times, legal work does not get the attention it deserves.

SOLUTION

Our lean business model, which minimizes overhead and uses creative pricing models, allows in-house lawyers to stretch their budgets twice as far.

BENEFIT

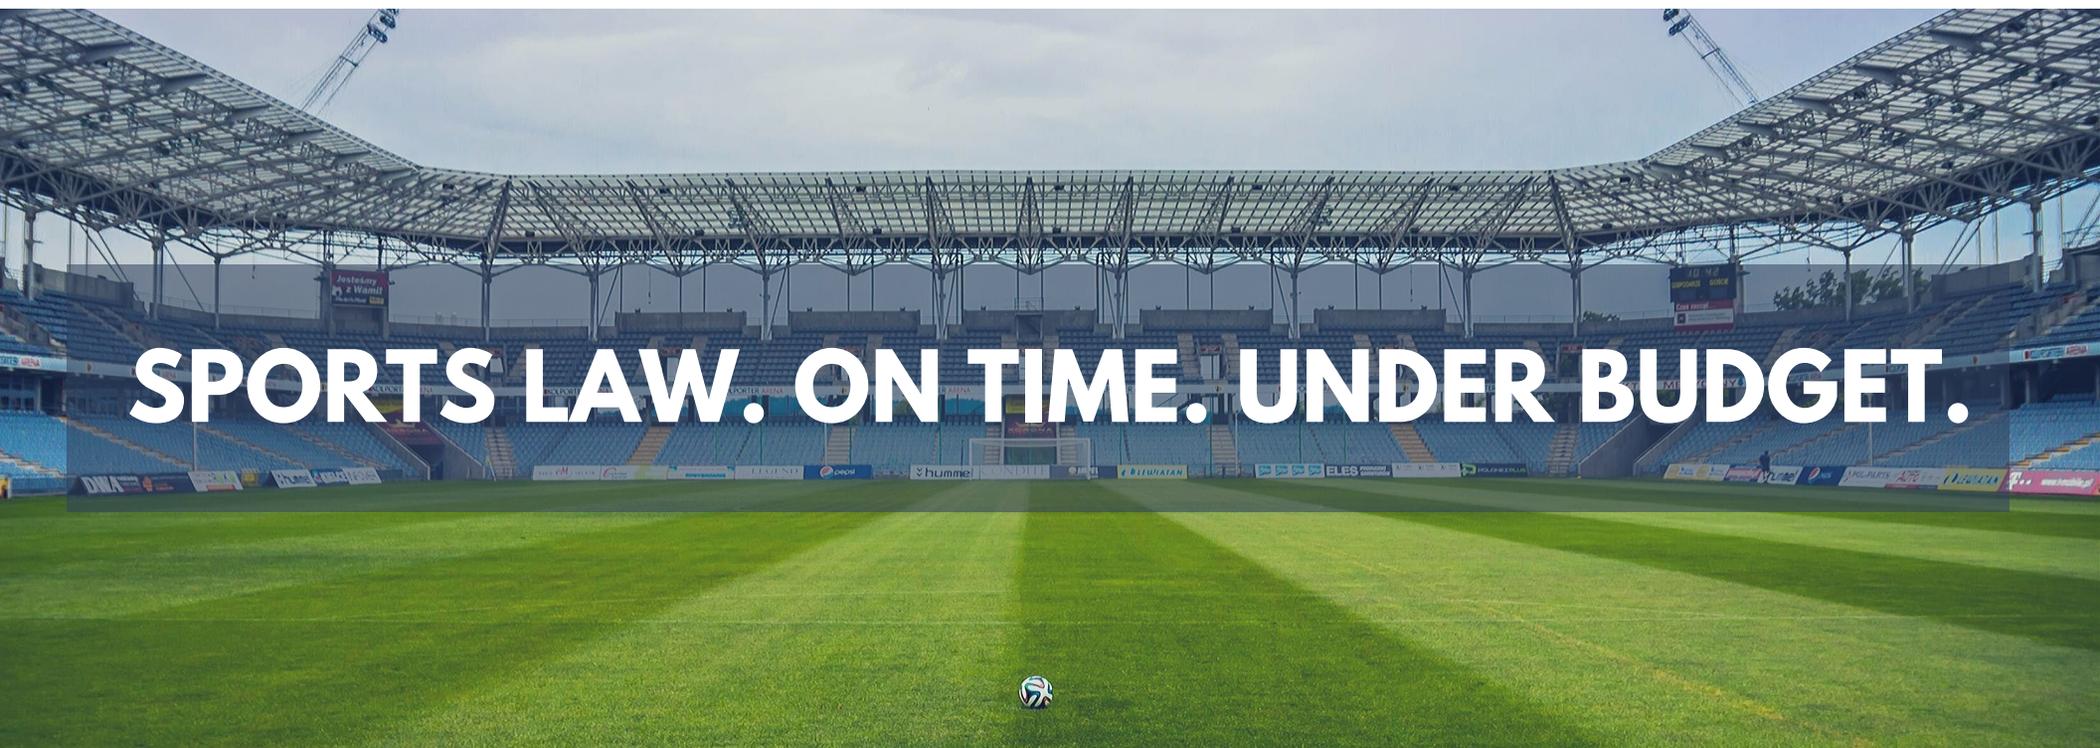

With twice as many legal problems solved and no additional costs incurred, in-house lawyers can shift their focus on the most important organizational affairs.

WE KNOW SPORTS LAW

Here are a few examples of our sports law expertise:

- Handle marketing legal issues, including contests, sweepstakes, and text message campaigns.
- Drafted numerous commercial agreements, including vendor, licensing, and sponsorship deals.
- Drafted venue use agreements for organizations and sports facilities.
- Represented colleges and universities on a variety of regulatory issues, including representation on NCAA compliance and infractions matters and Title IX.

SPORTS LAW. ON TIME. UNDER BUDGET.

WE HAVE A BILLING STRUCTURE FOR EVERY CLIENT

When it comes time to talk numbers, the first question we always ask is -- "What are your needs?" -- and devise a structure that works for both parties. Here are some sample structures and rates:

Hourly Rate: Contact us for each attorney's hourly rate.

Virtual General Counsel Program: Our lawyers spend a predetermined number of hours per month dedicated to your matters at a discounted hourly rate.

Contact us for a direct quote.

Flat Fee Structure: For existing clients or new ones, we are always open to working on a flat fee basis for any project.
